The mothers' day service was well attended and the girls loved having moms in their space

From the headmistress' desk

Dear parents

The second term is well under way and the rhythm of school activity is evident on a daily basis.

The Junior Primary girls are preparing for their play while the Senior Primary girls conscientiously anticipate regular and formal assessments, while still participating in the winter sports programme.

Please monitor your daughters' co-curricular commitments in and beyond school, to ensure a healthy balance between structured activity and essential leisure time.

Staff news

Mrs Kerry Gibbons will be on maternity leave in the Michaelmas term (Term III), and I am in the process of interviewing for a locum teacher.

Mrs Shelley Crawford has not been well and is undergoing various medical tests. Our prayers are with her.

Mrs Méabh Gilbert has resigned and will be leaving at the end of the term. Unfortunately, her husband's work permit has not been renewed as his contract work has ended and they will be relocating to the United Kingdom. Méabh has contributed significantly to the programme at Little Saints and we will miss her. I am in the process of appointing a teacher co-ordinator from within the team as well as a support teacher, and

Health

If your child is ill overnight, has a high temperature or is vomiting - please keep them at home to rest and get well; this will prevent the spread of the winter viruses to the school community.

I look forward to seeing many of you alongside the sports field and at the various events in which your children eagerly participate.

Yours sincerely

From the chaplain

On the day before term starts, we begin the day with a staff Eucharist. This last time, the Gospel for that day was John 14:27-31a. The Revd Roger Cameron was the preacher at that service and he reminded us of the words of Jesus:

“Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled and do not be afraid.”

As we go into this term perhaps we could take to heart that message: that Jesus gives us peace in the midst of this troubled country, in troubled family or personal situations, in a busy examination term with all the sporting and cultural activities. Whatever we may face, we are not alone and we do not have to be afraid.

From the Pre-Primary department

Dear parents

It is quite something to think a term has gone by already and I would like to take this opportunity to welcome each and every one of you back for the winter months. Little Saints is going to have a very exciting term, with renovations marked down on the calendar. Sometime around late June we will move to the Junior School while our school gets a facelift. Knowing the curiosity of our children and the ingenuity of the teachers, this move will become a provocation to be discussed, dissected, questioned and put back together in that marvellous way children do. It is going to be quite exciting to be right in the heart of the Junior School, although we will still make the journey to Little Saints, every now and then, for the beautiful playscape. We must thank the Junior School, and in particular the Art department, in advance for accommodating us.

Exploration and inquiry is at the heart of everything we do at Little Saints and currently all the children are exploring the same overarching theme albeit in different ways and with different outcomes. The theme is graphic and narration, the relationship between paper and storytelling. The children are being exposed to different types of media, as well as an assortment of writing materials, and are encouraged to explore and experiment as much as they like. They are noticing the relationship between black marker and black paper, for instance, between pencil and tin foil. They are fascinated by the pattern created when koki seeps through the newspaper. The children are then asked to create a story, with the results of their explorations as their prompt. This has given all us teachers a deeper insight into the capacity of childrens' ability to create a fantastical tale from just the smallest cue. I have no doubt that the narratives that have been produced are works that Roald Dahl would have been proud of.

Patronal Festival

St Mary's celebrated the Patronal Festival on Thursday 21 May with a service followed by a whole school picnic on the field. Little Saints joined the festivities at 11h30, after they had eaten their school snack. It was a wonderful morning of celebration and I know the children enjoyed being part of it.

Lost property

Although the children are getting better at looking after their belongings, lost property is a reality in any school. At Little Saints, we encourage parents to mark all items clearly so we can return clothing and shoes to their rightful owners. Any unlabelled items are collected and displayed at the entrance to Little Saints in the mornings. Ensure your child's belongings are clearly labelled, as this helps us return items to their owner. If your child inadvertently brings someone else's belongings home, which can happen, please return it the following day.

Sports day and fun day

Sports day will kick off in the Junior School Close at 09h00 on Saturday, 23 May, with teachers ready to welcome the children by 08h45. The children will be encouraged to participate in three fun "races". It is important to remember that this can be quite an intimidating setting for our little ones and tears are expected on the day.

Parents are encouraged to remember their own running shoes for the mums' and dads' races. These races often involve photo finishes and some very questionable tactics, and are guaranteed to raise lots of laughs. Given the success of last year, the PTA has once again decided to follow the Little Saints sports day with the fun day. I am sure class mums have already been in touch with information. We are looking forward to seeing you all there as it is one of the highlights on our social and sporting calendar.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions or concerns. I am only too happy to try to help.

Yours sincerely

Méabh Gilbert

From the Music department

The Junior School Music department hit the ground running this term, with three wonderful chapel services dedicated to the special St Mary's moms. Thank you for all you do for the girls. You are all greatly appreciated.

Term II is a busy one, with many high-profile musical performances taking place.

I encourage you to diarise these events, and to come along and support your girls.

Save the date - Studium Apertum

So far, 24 speakers have been confirmed for Studium Apertum on Saturday 11 July. Among these are Professor Jackie Naude of The Human Capital Engine, Dr Ian Weinberg, a neurosurgeon whose work deals with psychoneuroimmunology, Supreme Court of Appeal Judge Nigel Willis, celebrity author and blogger Khaya Dlanga, CNBC anchor, presenter and writer David Williams and, talking on female circumcision, Chris Hani Baragwanath Hospital's Head of Gynaecology, Dr Yasmin Adam.

The talks and presentations should stimulate much food for thought and debate in our community, which is, after all, what Studium Apertum is all about.

STUDIUM APERTUM

Book Character Parade

Last term's book fortnight was a resounding success and culminated in the book character parade, held in the Junior School Close

The human rhino

An initiative by a Form V girl, Katelyn Pye, last term saw the entire St Mary's School community supporting the plight of the rhinos in South Africa by "becoming" a rhino.

Almost 1 000 girls, boys and staff members were choreographed into the shape of a rhino to raise awareness to halt the poaching of this endangered, magnificent animal.

The true spirit of St Mary's was evident in the excitement that this initiative engendered, and all who participated deserve our heartfelt thanks.

The generous donations made by the pupils of our Junior School and Little Saints will contribute to the conservation and preservation of endangered species projects through the Save the Rhino Foundation.

ENTREPRENEURIAL LESSONS FOR KIDS FROM EISHKOM

Wherever you live in South Africa today and however young or old you are, you have had first-hand experience of having to do without electricity. For the first time, children from privileged homes are having to do their homework by candlelight, for extended periods, and go without certain electricity-fuelled luxuries! While there are many humorous Eishkom memes (pictures with funny captions) doing the rounds and we all curse the disorganised way in which load-shedding seems to occur, and the knock-on effect it has, there is also an entrepreneurial, teachable moment here that we should not miss.

Chatting with Allon Raiz, co-author of my next book, Raising Entrepreneurs, he shared this conversation he had with his two sons aged 8 and 11 recently:

Dad: Why is this thing with Eskom bad?
 Kids: We can't watch TV.
 Dad: Why is that bad?
 Kids: Because we miss our favourite programmes.
 Dad: And what else?

Kids: We don't see ads for stuff and then no one buys stuff.
 Dad: And what else?
 Kids: Shops can't open because they have no lights and credit card machines don't work.
 Dad: And why is that bad?
 Kids: Then they can't make any money.
 Dad: And what about restaurants?
 Kids: They lose business because they can't cook meals for their customers.
 Dad: Why is this thing with Eskom good?
 Kids: Because we get to spend more time together as a family talking and playing games
 Dad: And what else?
 Kids: We now know what other people feel like who don't have electricity like we do.
 Dad: Can you think of any business opportunities because of this thing with Eskom?
 Kids: People can start businesses that sell generators.
 Dad: And what else?
 Kids: People can service generators or design machines to save electricity and sell them.

So, the moral of the story is that in every bad situation we must teach our kids to figure out the good and, more importantly, to spot the opportunities. In times of crisis, human beings become innovative. Out of desperation comes innovation, and I bet we will see a bunch of fabulous ideas around electricity storage and generation coming from kids in the future (perhaps even at the annual Eskom-sponsored Expo for Young Scientists this year!)

Help your children to develop opportunity eyes - it is great fuel for the entrepreneurial spirit!
